

MY FAILURES ARE JUST STEPPING STONES TO MY SUCCESS.

Like everyone, I make mistakes and experience failures. However, I embrace these experiences because they help me get closer to my goals and achieve success.

My past mistakes guide me without defining me. I understand that mistakes are the bridge between inexperience and wisdom. Mistakes are the portals to my discoveries. I am getting to know myself through my mistakes.

I know that as long as I am making errors, I am out in the world contributing. My missteps are proof that I am putting forth effort and trying.

The mistakes I make today are my lessons for tomorrow. I reflect on my errors in order to avoid repeating them in the future. I learn more through my failures than through my simple successes, since they are gained without a challenge.

Having faith in myself and in my abilities is a reward to my soul. I can only reward myself if I look beyond my mistakes. I can only move forward once I look beyond my failures.

To remain positive, I view mistakes as only small setbacks. I understand that it is human nature to make mistakes. I achieve success with the knowledge that I gain from my failures.

Today, I remind myself that the biggest blunder I can ever make is letting fear of a mistake stop me. Experience is the name I choose to give to my mistakes. My failures are just stepping stones on my road to success.

SELF-REFLECTION QUESTIONS:

1. How can I use failures in a positive way?
2. What lessons have I learned from my mistakes?
3. What can I do daily to make my mistakes useful?
