

FAITH FUELS MY ENDEAVORS.

I dare to dream because I believe my vision is becoming my reality. When I launch myself into a new adventure, I expect a positive outcome. My faith provides me with the certainty that good things are to come.

I rest easy in the comforting arms of my faith. When my circumstances seem hopeless, my convictions give me the courage to imagine the bigger picture. I know that wonderful things await me beyond what my eyes can see.

My seemingly small beginnings are simply the first steps on the path of greatness. I am diligent in the most mundane tasks of my life. As I dedicate myself to each moment, I prove myself worthy of more responsibility.

Through my belief, I can persevere during the storm. Faith locks my mind on the goal and on positive thoughts, banishing discouragement. As I allow my convictions to increase, the limits to my possibilities disappear.

My ears are open only to the dreams placed deeply in my heart. They are closed to any negativity around me. I foresee a grand future. Even if doubts about my success try to creep into my mind, I immediately eradicate them.

I have the power to believe that I am who I want to be. I control my own destiny by choosing what I believe about myself. Because I know I have this power, I can achieve anything.

Today, I choose to believe that my dreams are attainable. I dare to see myself as someone with great potential who deserves to succeed in every way imaginable.

SELF-REFLECTION QUESTIONS:

1. What do I believe about myself?
2. Is my inner dialogue marked by faith or doubt?
3. Why is it necessary to believe the best about myself?